

A 5-star property in a neighborhood of working-class bistros, artisans and forgotten vegetable vendors – the perfect departure for foreigners stopping through Paris in search of authenticity and real life

A hotel that we prefer to call a home

Maison Bréguet is also the place to be for Parisians who prefer a familiar spot where good-naturedness and comfort reign supreme, and where friendly service is at once attentive to detail and respectful of French etiquette. Near the Marais and its art galleries, ready-to-wear shops and trendy restaurants, the hotel is a second home for world travelers and lovers of culture, fashion and adventure. A magnet for Parisian life, where people come to enjoy dinner with friends, have a drink, hold business meetings, listen to music or write their latest novel. Each to their own. For ours is a home: warm, welcoming and different, rich with discreet yet lavishly thoughtful details.

53 diverse rooms of varying sizes with only one thing in common: attention to detail. It was the founders' wish to provide travelers with a Parisian atmosphere often forgotten in today's hospitality. A taste for unique pieces, bespoke design, ne materials and excellent traditional craftsmanship. Re ned elegance that's never ostentatious, e ortlessly balancing art history and decor. Suites for those who dream of space. Connecting rooms perfect for families. Rooms with terraces for summer evenings and a private 3-bedroom home with its very own garden.
